

The ground rules go something like this:

Lessons are provided once per week (unless otherwise negotiated). Lessons are billed by the half hour. Students have the option of selecting either a single half hour or one full hour per week. This selection may be changed, by the student, at any time with one month's notice. The lesson is given at the same time each week unless a change is requested by the student or me. One week's notice is sufficient for a change in the lesson time. If the student is a no-show for the lesson, full payment for the lesson time is still required. Should I or the student be forced to cancel a lesson time without a make up date, payment for the lesson time is waved.

Payment for all lessons during each month is made during the week of the third Saturday of the month. An invoice will be given at the time payment is requested. Payment may be made by check, cash or money order. There is an additional $25.00 fee for late or returned checks. Any additional fees for field trips or supplies will also be due and recorded on your invoice.

Students do not need a drum set to get started. All that is required to begin learning are:

- One pair of drum sticks (size 5a will do)

- One practice pad with a stand

- One chair or drummer's throne

That's it!! – everything else is negotiable.

Any other questions you may have I will gladly answer. If you wish to proceed further I will provide curriculum and text information. Thanks again for your inquiry and I hope we can begin soon.
